Whilst at Wellsway Sixth Form, I studied chemistry, maths, physics, AS further maths and I completed the EPQ (extended project qualification). Here my love for science started and I am currently studying at the University of Oxford.

My teachers were always very encouraging, not only academically, but also towards the wider Sixth Form life and other activities; I enjoyed taking part in music at Wellsway, especially the whole school Christmas concerts!

With their support, in Year 12, I applied to 'UNIQ' which is a summer school for state school students. I managed to get a place for Earth Sciences and immediately fell in love with the interdisciplinary way all the Earth's systems have worked through time. This led me to apply to Oxford, Exeter College and the passion has only grown!

This continued, when I got the opportunity of a place on a flying scholarship through air cadets; I am also now in the university Air Squadron where we do flying, sport, adventure training and much more alongside studying.

I left Wellsway Sixth Form in 2016, having spent a total of 7 years as a part of the school (including 2 in the Sixth Form).

Since leaving, I have gone onto gain a BA Hons degree in Philosophy, Politics and Economics from the University of Reading. This has led me onto my recent Master's course at the University of Stirling in Criminology. I don't know exactly what I want to do after this course, but it's a great way to focus my learning and explore a career path further. Doing extra study during these odd times is a good move too.

My main memories from the Sixth Form were of the people I met, friends and the teachers who really supported me during A-Levels. Those relationships helped me then and I continue to have strong friendships that help me now.

At Wellsway I studied History, English Literature and Biology. I also did an EPQ on “The Impact of the British Empire on the Maltese economy 1800-1964”.

At Wellsway I really enjoyed all my subjects, my teachers were brilliant and I especially owe it to my history teachers for inspiring me in the subject and making it my favourite lesson.

I enjoyed how social my time at sixth form was, it was a much more comfortable environment for me personally than at lower school. I loved the events the sixth form put on and I always laugh thinking back to everything that happened. I was Vice-Chair of the officer team and I really enjoyed the opportunity to be involved in the sixth form’s running. I was quite introverted in lower school but by the end of sixth form I was the total opposite. If I have to thank Wellsway sixth form for if anything it’s bringing me out my shell and making me a much happier person.

After Wellsway I went to Oxford Brookes University to do my BA in History. At university, I was chairperson of our Labour club for two years and was on the committee of our LGBTQ+ society for one year. I graduated top of my year and won two history awards for my achievements there. I’m currently studying my MA in Contemporary History at the University of Birmingham.
